

Fourth Sunday of Lent

Mothering Sunday

Today is a day for the family to worship together, to rejoice in being a family and to give thanks for their mutual love. Involve as many of the children as possible in doing things. Let them bring up the bread and wine, and take the collection. The children could carry banners expressing thanksgiving for the love of their homes and the love of God. Children could be encouraged to bring a photograph of their mother to the altar rail. Let children lead some of the intercessions and some of the readings. It should be possible for a mother and a child to share in a reading. If flowers or cards are given out, remember all of us have a mother. Encourage all to come forward. Some may like then to place their flowers or card near the candles if their mother has died and is now in God's kingdom and love.
